Paper Recycling Tips

Are you wondering what to do with outdated meds?

As you know, medications should not be flushed down the toilet or put into the dumpsters. The Belmont Avenue police station collects outdated meds. Bring them along to the next Beat meeting or drop them off at the Belmont Avenue station. There's a blue bin for this purpose just inside the main entrance. It is important that these items are disposed of properly.

New and gently used teddy bears and other plush animals are collected by the 19th District to be given to children traumatized by crime or fire. Donations can be brought to the next Beat meeting or dropped off directly at the Belmont Avenue Station

Maria Bappert

Sometimes we are just not sure about where some things should go, so here are some guidelines. .

While you may think these paper-based items are recyclable, they actually belong in the trash:

- paper bags with foil lining (such as cookie bags)
- carbon copies
- candy bar wrappers
- metallic paper (such as yeast packets)
- used napkins
- manila envelopes lined with bubble wrap

These items can be included in your Blue Cart:

- envelopes with plastic windows
- waxy cardboard beverage containers, such as orange juice and soy milk containers

Disposing of Latex Paint

The Household Chemicals & Computer Recycling Facility no longer accepts latex paint because of the high disposal cost and very low environmental impact.

Here's what you can do with your leftover latex paint:

Dry it up: Use kitty litter, shredded paper or sawdust to absorb the remaining paint, or pour the paint into a bag. After it dries, throw the bag or absorbent material away and recycle the empty can.

Donate it: Ask friends and neighbors if they need paint for a small project. Local schools or theater groups sometimes look for free paint for sets and art projects.

Store it: Save the leftover paint for touch-ups in the future. To prevent the paint from drying out, wrap the lid with plastic wrap, making sure the lid fits securely.

Memberships run from October 1 through September 30
